We are happy to invite your company working within health to a test in one of our 14 highly specialised LivingLabs working with health innovation.

We are an EU European Regional Development Fund, BSR programme co-financed project, ProVaHealth, which aims to remove barriers for the slow market uptake of innovations and facilitate market access for small and medium sized companies working within health. The goal is to establish a trans-national network of Living Labs in the Baltic Sea Region, which can assist in enhancing the competitiveness of the region's companies by testing of products and services in real life in a trans-national setting at one of our 14 specialized Living Labs focusing on health and welfare products and services.

For that purpose we are seeking 14 SME's working with health from the Baltic Sea Region who are interested in having their products or services tested in one of our highly specialised LivingLabs. Specifically, we are looking for either SME's with an idea which needs fine-tuning before being ready for market or SME's with the ambition to introduce a validated product to a new market in the Baltic Sea Region.

If you are interested...

The process starts with you submitting the details of your needs by filling out the fields found here, no later than April 30th. This information is passed on to the 14 LivingLabs in the project, and the LivingLabs who believe they can address your needs, will send you a proposal for testing. There are a few requirements which will be made clear, but it is entirely up to you if you want to engage in testing based on these proposals, and who to engage with.
